

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A transducer includes a substrate and a thin membrane having a shape that can be deflected relative to the substrate to provide an amount of membrane deflection useful for sensing or actuation purposes.